Not illustrated. 1858 Excerpt: ...directors may be liable, no doubt, to the company; but these circumstances of misconduct do not justify the Court in saying that the company is brought within the provisions of the 5th section of the act, and ordering a winding up. There is no ground for departing from the order which his Honour has made, and the petition must be dismissed, and dismissed with costs. BELL V. CLARKE. M.R. April 21. Settlement--Covenant to bequeath. A father, on the marriage of his son, covenanted with trustees to bequeath one full fourth part of all his real and personal estate, after payment of his debts, to the trustees of the marriage settlement, who were to sell and convert the same into money and stand possessed of the proceeds upon the trusts of the settlement. After the father's death, in a suit to administer his estate, it was held, that the covenant meant a fourth in value and not a fourth in specie. John Browne Bell, upon the marriage of his son, Horace James Bell, with Elizabeth Frances Pochin, joined in the marriage settlement, dated the 21st of March 1838, and covenanted with the trustees that in case either H. J. Bell or E. F. Pochin, or any issue of the marriage, should be living at his death, he, J. B. Bell, would, by his will, or by some codicil thereto, but subject to the directions contained therein regarding the management, sale, disposition, getting in, and realization of the same, well and effectually give, devise and bequeath unto the trustees or the survivors or survivor of them, or the heirs, executors, administrators or assigns respectively of such survivor, one full fourth part of all the real and personal estate whatsoever, of or to which he, the said J. B. Bell, or any person or persons in trust for him, should, at the time of the death of him, J. ...
