- Tracing earth's earliest generations from the miracle of a six-day Creation to the time of Abraham.
- Integrating the forty-year wilderness wandering with the chronological data given in the Pentateuch and the opening chapters of Joshua.
- Fitting Eli and Samuel into the Judges Era (even though neither is mentioned in the book of Judges).
- Relating the kings of the divided monarchy to each other and to the prophets who prophesied during their reigns.
- Synchronizing the biblical figures and Persian kings of the Post-Exilic Period.
- Showing the biblical significance of the Intertestamental Era.
- Charting the phases of Jesus' ministry as related in the four Gospels.
- Correlating Paul's Journeys in the book of Acts with the itinerary information given in his Epistles.
- Discussing alleged chronological discrepancies.
